“TraySense” Debuts at The Inspired Home Show with a Smart Solution Inspired by Real Life Emergency

Chicago, IL – March 2026 – TraySense, an innovative smart replenishment tray developed by Applied Texas Labs (ATL), is making its debut at The Inspired Home Show. Designed to eliminate the stress of running out of essential household items, TraySense provides a simple, reliable way to ensure supplies are always replenished before they become a problem.

The inspiration behind TraySense came during a Thanksgiving gathering at home. While hosting family and friends, a quiet whisper from child revealed that the powder room had run out of toilet paper. In that brief moment of urgency, the idea was born: what if the tray itself could notify the household before anyone ever felt inconvenience or embarrassment?

TraySense activates a wireless LED alert the instant the last roll is removed and remains illuminated until at least one roll is replaced. The system operates independently without relying on home Wi-Fi and includes a wall mount or counter-top alert station for clear, visible notifications within a range of 30ft that can be placed in any room or floor.

Beyond bathroom essentials, the technology can be adapted for kitchen staples, medicine cabinets, pet food storage, and other everyday household needs. TraySense represents a new category of smart home replenishment systems focused on comfort, preparedness, and everyday wellness within the home.

Applied Texas Labs is currently seeking licensing and retail partnerships for TraySense.
